WASHINGTON, (UP) — The cost of living rose to a record level again last month to make consumer prices at the end of 1956 almost 3 per cent higher than December, 1955, the government reported today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics' consumer price index rose two-tenths of one per cent between November and December to a new high of 118 per cent of average 1947-49 prices.

The index set new records in six of the last seven months of 1956. The new increase also means cost of living pay boosts ranging from 1 to 3 cents an hour for about 500,000 workers in trucking and other transport industries, and the electrical and aircraft factories. Wage contracts in those industries contain escalator clauses tied to the price index.

The bureau of labor statistics also reported that the average factory workers' take-home pay and the purchasing power of his paycheck rose to record levels in December, despite the rise in the cost of living.

At the year's end, the average factory take-home pay was almost 2 per cent higher than in November and about 5 per cent higher over the year.

The purchasing power of the average factory pay check stood at 125.5 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

Th BLS said higher housing costs were the main factor in the cost of living increase last month.

Grace's Baby Made Official Monaco Heir

MONACO (UP) — Two-day-old Princess Caroline Louise Marguerite officially became heiress-apparent today to the lands of Europe's oldest ruling royal family.

She will succeed to the throne of Monaco unless a brother is born.

The name of the daughter of Princess Grace and Prince Rainier was inscribed in the gold-trimmed register of the Grimaldi family, a clan which has—with two exceptions—ruled this 368-acre principality since 1297.

The ceremony was held at 11 a.m. (5 a.m., EST) in the green room of the Grimaldi family's stone-walled palace overlooking the in line of succession was witnessed by the president of the Monaco state council, who acted in his capacity as director of Monaco's judicial services.

Dr. Emile Hervey, Princess Grace's chief physician, said yesterday both mother and daughter were in "excellent condition." He said the former American actress is nursing her baby, and that Grace was "surprised and delighted" to see she has started to regain her trim figure.

Indications were that it will be a few days before the waiting world will be shown photographs of the royal baby. Sets of photo graphs are being prepared by Grace's favorite photographer, Howell Grant of New York.

These will be sold to magazines submitting sealed bids, and Prince Rainier has ordered that money from their sale be given to Monaco charity. It was unofficially estimated receipts may total more than $30,000.

Jets Cross U. S. in Record Time

BEDFORD, Mass., — (UP) — A coast-to-coast record for bombers was set today by an Air Force jet bomber which made the flight in 9 hours and 47 minutes with the aid of the "jet stream."

The B-47 flashed over the marker at Hanscom Air Base here at 9:04 a.m. (EST) after flying 2,650 miles from March Air Force Base in California.

Major Mont Smith of Arlington, Mass., the pilot, said the flight was made in 9 hours and 47 minutes. The tower at Hanscom originally had given the time as 9 hours and 46 minutes.

Through Understanding Races Can Be Friendly

By HELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Years ago at this time, an eager young man in Japan was brimming with excitement about a long voyage. He was going to the United States. Perry had "opened" Japan somewhat forcibly—ending its 250 years of self-imposed isolation from the rest of the world. During that time, no Japanese could legally leave the country. After Perry a treaty was written and relations with America began.

A century has passed now. 100 years of give and take, including a fearful war, and today the two countries are linked again. Superficially, no two people seem less alike. But underneath—well, here is the young man's story:

His name was Yukiichi Fukuzawa and he was a man of wide-ranging curiosities. Everything interested him, the sciences, languages, government, manner, customs. He came to America in the first ship, built and navigated entirely by Japanese, to cross the Pacific.

How would they be received? The answer came quickly. "The Americans did everything for us," he wrote, "and they could not have done more."

He describes the lengths to which the people in San Francisco went to provide them with food comparable to their own diet and "knowing our habits"—facilities for a Japanese-style bath. He used a charming Japanese expression—

"It was as if our host had put us in the palm of his hand to see that we lacked nothing."

Adventure meets him at every turn. Ice even in summer, and floating in champagne, at that. Ladies present at receptions. Having learned to smoke, he lights a cigar but can't find an ash tray. "I put it in my pocket and presently my clothes were smoky."

In Washington, however, he finds something that tames in perfectly with his deepest sensibilities. The Japanese venerate their great men, and he is impressed with the statues of George Washington and the memorials of the Founding Fathers, now he feels completely at home.

But the forms of government in a democracy baffle him.

"I was told that this man and that man were enemies" in the House. But these "enemies" were to be seen at the same table, eating and drinking with each other. It took me a long time before I could understand these separate and mysterious facts."

And to show how little the world has changed in 100 years, a Russian tried to persuade him to be a spy for Moscow!

The time came to go back to Japan. In San Francisco, meanwhile, their ship had undergone extensive repairs.

"When the ship was ready, and we were preparing to sail on the homeward voyage we inquired how many we should have to pay for the repairs and other expenses. We were met with a kindly smile, and were obliged to sail away with out obligations unpaid."

What was the result of all this? At home, Fukuzawa became one of the leaders often at the risk of his life—in the struggle between those who feared and hated foreigners and the group advocating closer relations with the United States and the other Western nations. There is no way of knowing how many of his people he converted during his years of teaching and writing.

There are still more like him today on both sides of the Pacific, people who see the deep similarities, not the surface differences, between two races.

Delay Sought on UN Arms Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union and the Western Powers moved today to have the U. N. General Assembly skip a showdown debate on disarmament and leave the subject to private talks.

Twelve nations laid a compromise resolution before the Assembly's Political Committee with the expectation it would be adopted before the day was out.

The resolution would have the Assembly refer pending arms control proposals to the 12-nation Disarmament Commission and its five-nation subcommittee for "prompt attention."

The commission would be asked to convene the three-year-old subcommittee "at an early date" with a request that it make a progress report by Aug. 1.

The subcommittee includes Britain, Canada, France, the Soviet Union and the United States. They sponsored the resolution along with Australia, Brazil, El Salvador, India, Japan, Norway and Yugoslavia.

It was the first disarmament resolution with joint Soviet-Western sponsorship since 1954, the last time the Assembly approved one unanimously.

Says Red Troops Have Atom Weapons

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today he believes Russian troops just inside the Communist perimeter already are equipped with nuclear weapons.

The West German government leader was replying to a question at his semi-monthly news conference about Moscow's recent warning to the United States against equipping foreign bases with atomic-armed missiles.

Adenauer added, however, that if the Soviet warning was not merely propaganda it was a diplomatic gambit. He said it was directed only to the United States and added that NATO forces in Europe do not have nuclear weapons.

The Soviets charged Wednesday that the United States was establishing bases around the Soviet Union for atomic-armed guided missiles.

How would they be received? The answer came quickly. "The Americans did everything for us," he wrote, "and they could not have done more."

He describes the lengths to which the people in San Francisco went to provide them with food comparable to their own diet and "knowing our habits"—facilities for a Japanese-style bath. He used a charming Japanese expression—

Field Would Leave Tax Up to Counties

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill which would permit counties to impose a 1 per cent sales tax for benefit of counties' school districts was introduced in the House today by Rep. Fulton Feld Jr., of Hempstead County.

The tax would be an addition to the present 2 per cent state tax and would be imposed only on items covered by the state tax.

An election to decide if a county tax should be imposed could be called on petition of 15 per cent of the voters.

Other bills submitted today included one by Rep. Jim Cones Jr., of Pulaski County to impose a fine of as much as $100 for any person found guilty of throwing rubbish on highway right of way.

House Rejects Another Tax Proposal

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The House got embroiled in a noisy but good natured argument today before rejecting a bill which the author claimed would equalize charges on goods purchased outside the state in line with charges on similar purchases within the state.

The state imposes a 2 per cent sales tax on purchases within the state.

It imposes a similar 2 per cent tax known as the use tax against purchases made outside the state.

Rep. T. E. Tyler of Pulaski County, the author, said his bill would remove use tax exemptions which certain machinery and equipment now enjoy and put the use tax on these articles on the same basis as the sales tax.

Rep. Charles W. Stewart Jr., of Washington County suggested that under wording of the bill it would remove a sales tax exemption for poultry and livestock feed voted in 1955 after a bitter legislative battle.

Tyler said this was not true—that no exemptions under the sales tax would be changed.

He agreed with Rep. W. J. Ward of Lee County that his bill would remove a use tax exemption on cotton ginning machinery voted in 1955.

Several other House members got into the act before a roll call was taken.

The vote was 36 for the bill and 38 against.

Bill to Make Drivers More Responsible

By ADREN COOPER

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill to strengthen the driver responsibility law was introduced in the Arkansas Senate today by Sen. Arlie Gregory of Little Rock.

The bill would require a driver to furnish proof he has liability insurance before he is issued an automobile license and registration.

Under present law a driver need not furnish such proof, but his license may be suspended if he is involved in an accident and cannot satisfy legitimate damage claims.

"This would eliminate that first free death," Gregory said.

The major debate in the upper chamber developed over a proposed amendment to a bill that would reorganize the state Board of Nursing, which was introduced yesterday by Sen. James Baker of West Helena.

The present board is composed of six registered nurses and three practical nurses.

Baker's bill would establish a board of seven members, including six registered nurses.

Sen. Gregory declared that practical nurses should have more representation and he offered an amendment to create a board of nine members, four of whom would be practical nurses and five registered nurses.

Gregory remarked that he spoke from personal experience and said he had been in a hospital six times in the past 10 months. He said registered nurses usually held supervisory jobs and "practical" nurses did most of the work.

Debate on the amendment was suspended by the expiration of the morning hour and presumably it will be brought up in the morning hour Monday.

Later a motion to send the bill to measure itself was not tied up in the morning hour—too committee aided by an 11-10 vote.

Baker said his bill had the approval of the registered nurses' association.

British to Streamline Military

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan is stepping up plans to renovate and streamline Britain's military machine, under the broad supervision of Defense Minister Duncan Sandys. The government wants U. S. approval and aid in the move.

Macmillan told Parliament he had directed Sandys to draft a new program "in the light of present strategic needs" that would make sizable cuts in manpower and appropriations. The emphasis will be on new nuclear weapons.

The announcement came on the eve of Sandys' flight to Washington for conferences with top American leaders.

Sandys is Sir Winston Churchill's son-in-law. His wife Diana announced Sunday they had separated.

The defense minister leaves tomorrow for Washington. He will be accompanied by Britain's top nuclear experts, including Sir William Penry, the scientist in charge of this country's atomic tests.

Informed sources say Britain is ready to trade its nuclear secrets for American missiles without their atomic warheads, which might U. S. security laws keep in American hands.

Senate Report Shows Housing Cost Prohibitive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate report says an upward trend in the prices of new homes has "brought the housing industry to a point where it is serving primarily the upper income groups."

The report, prepared by the staff of the Senate Housing Subcommittee, said yesterday families in the middle income bracket are being squeezed out of the housing market.

Low income families also were described as suffering from housing shortages said by the report to be plaguing most of the nation's cities. However, poorer families are eligible for low-rent public housing, the study noted.

The subcommittee staff said the building industry "is concerned with the question of whether it is pricing itself out of the market."

The report cited figures showing that housing production had dropped by 200,000 units last year in the face of a rising need. And it said a "further falling off" from the 100,000-unit total last year is possible this year.

The report said factors contributing to the upward price movement include increased land costs, higher zoning requirements and preferential prices for mortgages on larger homes, among others. It said the "current tight money market" appears to have played a major role in the reduction in the number of housing units built.

Mayors of 131 cities cooperated in the study. The report said the mayors recommended aid for middle income families in the form of more favorable mortgage terms, direct government loans and more effective help to non-profit rental and states cooperatives.

Pakistan and India to Keep Kashmir Order
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — By a 14-0 vote the U. N. Security Council has called on India and Pakistan to stand fast in disputed Kashmir until the people decide their future through a plebiscite.

The former princely state in the Himalayas is claimed by both the South Asian neighbors. Troops from both countries occupy separate areas, divided by a U. N. cease-fire line.

The council action on which the Soviet Union abstained, was taken despite strong protests from India in a record 7-hour speech by V. K. Krishna Menon.

The resolution adopted by the council was introduced by the United States, Australia, Colombia, Cuba and Britain. It declared that any action by any party in Kashmir, India or Pakistan to determine the future of the state would not be in accord with previous U. N. decisions for a plebiscite.

Pakistan had asked that a U. N. police force be sent to Kashmir to hold a plebiscite.

Pakistan charged India intends to annex the disputed territory to morrow during celebrations of Indian Republic Day. Menon in his marathon talk declared Kashmir has been in the Indian Union since 1947. He said that that would happen is that the constitution-making Kashmir Assembly would dissolve itself at midnight tonight.

The Assembly functions only in the area occupied by India. In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru told newsmen the council resolution would not change the position in Kashmir.

Britain's grant of independence to the subcontinent provided that Kashmir could join either India or Pakistan. Maharaja Sir Hari Singh, a Hindu, said it would become part of India but Pakistan claimed he had lost his authority.

Because 77 per cent of Kashmir's 4½ million people are Moslems, largely Hindu India has refused to agree on terms of a plebiscite to decide the state's future.

Mrs. Arthur Wimmell has returned from a three weeks visit with relatives in New Jersey and Missouri.

Fire destroyed a barn with 250 bushels of corn Friday afternoon in the McCaskill community. It is believed the fire originated from a carelessly thrown cigarette. The building was on the Hood property and contained corn belonging to Gus McCaskill. Since rain fell on Monday and Tuesday, the dry weather fire hazard has been eliminated for the time being.

Alternate Juror Called to Duty

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — The Latham kidnapping jury resumed deliberations for the ninth day today, with an alternate juror.

The replacement resulted from the illness of a regular juror yesterday afternoon. The substitution made the jury lineup six men and six women. Two additional alternates are available.

The original jury began deliberations Jan. 17 on charges accusing two women of kidnapping Mrs. Ruth E. Latham, 32, from her home and attempting to murder her Sept. 12 by burying her in a rocky desert grave.

The defendants are Mrs. Beatrice Victoria Winn, 37, and Mrs. Lucille Whisenand, 36. They denied the charges and testified they themselves were kidnapped Sept. 12 and taken to the Mexican border.

A civil court suit between Mrs. Winn and Mrs. Latham and her husband had been set for trial Sept. 13. They were contending for the assets of a building materials firm they owned jointly.

Dean, Jerry Routed for Fun in 'Hollywood or Bust'

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis take to the open road in their newest film, "Hollywood or Bust." The story of a madcap cross-country trip, the Paramount picture gives show business' top comics the opportunity to spread their hilarious antics over three thousand screen miles of Technicolor countryside, with blonde goddess Anita Ekberg, bright and refreshing Pat Crowley and colorful Maxie Rosenbloom helping to brighten the way.

Opening Sunday at the Saenger theater, "Hollywood or Bust" has Lewis as a rabid movie fan determined to make a do-or-die trek to the movie capital to see his idol, Anita Ekberg. Through a series of laugh-provoking complications only Dean and Jerry can get into, Martin is shanghaied on the trip and the pair bumble their way from coast to coast in a guided tour to laughter and song well populated with some of the screen's loveliest girls and most gorgeous scenery.

Smoothing the road between adventures are five new songs, written by the Academy Award composers of "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing," Sammy Fain and Paul Francis Webster, with staging by Charles O'Curran and vocal arrangements by Norman Luboff. As an added enticement, Pat Crowley, a previous sensation for her comedy and dramatic roles, sings and dances for the first time.

Directed by Frank Tashlin, "Hollywood or Bust" was filmed in eight states and spotlights such famous Hollywood landmarks as Grauman's Chinese Theater, the Brown Derby, Hollywood Bowl, Olvera Street and Romanoff's.

Sunday School Lesson

By William E. Gilley, D.D.

In the long course of history it is appalling to realize how many of the world's great have had as a chief function, or accompaniment, of their careers the destruction of human life. It has been not only on the battlefield "where thousands die to life one hero into fame," but in lust of conquest and power whole peoples have been wiped out.

In contrast with all that dark and terrible record are the records of many whose distinction has been in life-protection and life-saving. And above all these, in many instances their immediate inspiration and example, is Jesus of Nazareth, whose mission He very definitely declared was to give life, and to give it more abundantly (John 10:10).

What is that more abundant life that Jesus gives to man? I think, first of all, it is life itself — sense of the reality of a consciousness of what God has given to you, to me — a creation that is ours, and not just a far-off beginning in a dim and distant Adam.

It is an awakening, a quickening of the soul, when man realizes some of the wonderment of his own being.

With this sense of life's value, of belonging, is the sense of permanency — that life in a spiritual sense is never destroyed. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans 6:23).

In what does the abundance of the Christian life consist? Undoubtedly its deepest element is a sense of inward peace. In those who have been most truly Christian that inward peace has been an indestructible possession triumphing over suffering and persecution.

It seems incredible, but it is so, demonstrated pre-eminently in the experience of the Apostle Paul, whose articulateness has given the experience its most profound expression.

Next to this is the abundant life-giving heritage of right relationship with others. The adjustments that many find it so hard to make are an achievement for the Christ-inspired man, easier in proportion as one yields to the law of love and follows the example of the Master.

In our time we have heard an immense amount about "making the best-selling books expressing that theme, but for the deep, real business of life I doubt whether they have anything to offer that can compare with what one can find in the New Testament, which can be purchased for a modest sum.

There are frustrations and disappointments in life for which there are no easy compensations, or any apparent way out.

Yet, even in such circumstances, many have achieved in love and service a triumphant character, and if not happiness a satisfaction that careers have not always attained.

But in the large area of life what Jesus declared was that love is stronger than hate.

It is only in love and mercy that there can be any gain. Construction, not destruction, was the sole purpose of Jesus; and though mankind in the main has refused to listen, He revealed the only way that it can be achieved. It is through life and its abundance.

DOROTHY DIX

Security Alone No Basis for Marriage

"Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a very attractive widow of 34. Recently I met a young man immediately caught my eye. We discovered many mutual interests, and finally he asked me to marry him. (Now don't know what to do! I am well aware that he can provide a secure future for me, but I seem to admire — not love — him.

Dear Vicki: Apparently the thing that worries you is a difference in age which you hint at, but don't specify. The fact that interests you is the boy's ability to provide a good future. That isn't enough for marriage. Don't succumb to a risky chance of happiness.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Is there anything wrong with friendships between married and single women? I'm 22, and naturally some of my friends are married. Mother feels they are, therefore, unsuitable company for me.

Dear April: It would indeed be a pity if etiquette imposed such a restriction. Think of all the pleasant associations that would be broken between classmates, sorority sisters, childhood playmates and co-workers. You must realize, of course, that your married friends won't have the freedom of single girls, and that other interests will come before those you share together. But, keeping these limitations in mind, continue your friendships.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 16 and allowed very few dates. Recently I have had permission to date Jim, a classmate. We get along very well, but he's unreliable. He dates me for a couple of months, he's done this twice, without explanation. He doesn't seem like the type that would purposely hurt a girl.

Licks old Center-Post Agitator Problem! THE LAUNDROMAT-NEW WAY TO WASH

Westinghouse removed the Center-Post entirely . . . put smooth agitators at the inside of the wash basket. As the basket revolves, these agitators wash the clothes by lifting, turning, fluffing through soapy water 50 times a minute. Every piece is washed all the time, thoroughly, equally well.

The old-fashioned Center-Post agitator system. Clothes in the center of the basket must get rough treatment; clothes in the top wash less easily, more.

Westinghouse Laundromat With New Way to Wash

All These Plus Features

- Exclusive Weight-to-Save Door
- Water Saver
- Handy Laundrofile
- Uses only half as much detergent
- Uses 10 gallons less water
- Self-Cleaning

Made History on TV, Doesn't Own a Set

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles Van Doren is a tall, 30-year-old, extraordinarily intelligent English instructor at Columbia University who looks somewhat like Joseph Colton in his younger days and who does not own a television set.

He plans to buy one, however. It will be an appropriate gesture for he has recently come into a position to afford one and he also has recently made television history of a kind.

This week he ran his television quiz show earnings to $104,500 after nine arduous weeks of answering an unlimited variety of questions on the best of this season's new TV quiz programs. Twenty-One (NBC-TV, Mondays). The previous TV giveaway record was $100,000, won by five persons on The Big Surprise.

I had lunch the other day with Van Doren before he went on the program. "If I were a betting man," he said in answer to a question, "I'd bet I won't quit tonight but will go on."

Well, he certainly is a betting man. He played a lot of poker in the Air Force in World War II and he must be a very good player. I'm a betting man too. I'll bet he doesn't quit next week. I'll bet he goes up several thousand more before he quits.

My bet is based on the fact that Van Doren has strong nerves and self-confidence—which are quite different from egotism. Most quiz contestants eventually begin to act like hams. Van Doren does not.

He says he hasn't the vaguest idea what his I. Q. is. When people try to discover the sources of his intelligence, he gives the credit to his father, Mark Van Doren, the writer and teacher, and his mother, a former newspaper woman.

"In my family we were always in the habit of looking things up when we didn't know the answer," he said. "Just the other night when I was up in Connecticut he was all over the place on the name of the material-bearing mosquito. We looked it up. It's a mosquito of the genus Anopheles."

No matter how much he makes on Twenty-One, Van Doren plans to continue teaching. After buying a car and a TV set he plans to use the rest as a backlog which will enable him to write fiction without having to do some of the hack writing necessary to piece out an instructor's salary. He mutters something about buying a house some day. A house requires a wife, of course, and probably Van Doren has a girl in mind. But he absolutely declines to identify her.

New Officers Elected And Installed

The Antioch Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Dottie Colbert on Monday, January 21. The meeting was opened with Mrs. Dottie Colbert, vice president and Mrs. Cleo Johnson, assistant secretary in charge. Regular order of business was followed with the selection of subject matter leaders for the various phases of work coming up in unfinished business, and new business consisted of selecting goals for 1957. The goals selected were: Each member is to take an X-Ray during the year; and the club is to do improvements on the cemetery.

Mrs. Cleo Johnson gave a report on the health leaders training meeting she attended. Her

A DOCTOR For BLUE JAY COVE

By ELIZABETH SEBERT

The smells were familiar to her—flowers and alcohol, a faint hint of croonette. A chair was being pushed along the hall; in it was an old lady, obviously agitated. A starched white nurse pushed the chair, and a white-clad doctor walked beside it. Dr. Knapp.

Francis's door stood open; Cass knuckled lightly upon the frame and went in. Francis sat in her wheel chair, her back to the window. Beautiful, well-groomed, well-dressed, she sat like a spider in her web and watched Cass. State to reason for her call.

Cass stiffened her back, lifted her chin, and spoke briskly to the point. "Mrs. Knapp," she said crisply, "it may not surprise you to know that I—that we—are planning to dispose of the Haven for Alex's mother. We have her power of attorney."

"It does surprise me."

"The Bank has offered us $40,000 as the place stands today. Name, good will—the services now in effect. It occurs to me, and to Alex too, that the hospital here might itself want to purchase the Haven. We realize how much House Springs depends upon that outpatient facility."

"We helped Cordy Ward start it," Francis attempted.

"Oh, yes. I know the whole history of it. Your help was valuable just as was the extra work and devotion which Aunt Cordy put into the project. But—as a strictly business operation—the place now has a fixed value, either to the Bank, or to House Springs Hospital."

"When I talked to Mr. Clark last night," said Cass, "I stated certain conditions which we would also make to you. If you buy the Haven and run it—and we can't conceive of your wanting to give up a service so helpful to you—we'd ask that Mrs. Ward be permitted to keep her room, and allowed to stay where she is now."

For as long as staying there seemed advisable for her peace of mind. Whoever buys the Haven, she still would need the hospital, care as a patient. We plan to put the cash from the Haven's sale into annuities, and of course would pay for her care."

Francis's fingers had begun to tap the arms of her chair. "But what about you, Cass? Will you stay and run the Haven? You've done a marvelous job with it."

Cass smiled wryly. "I did it only in the emergency. No—I wouldn't stay on. You see, I gave up a business career to marry."

Francis smiled. "What will you do?"

Cass felt her cheeks color. Francis—the hospital—knew where Alex was. And she did not. "My plans are indefinite," she said coolly. (And Francis still smiled.)

Cass's whole face became a question mark.

"Oh, with Matt, too, of course," said Francis. "But Sue is the man of that family. And it's quite all right—Matt likes it that way. Though I fully expect Sue to do something about that now."

Cass tugged at the cuff of her glove. "I'll come back tomorrow," she said, "for your answer."

"Cass! Wait!" It was Sue's voice, not loud, but clear. Sue was coming swiftly along the corridor from the other wing. Cass was just entering her room. "I was just about home," Sue explained, a little out of breath. She caught Cass's elbow into her hand; together they left the hospital, and cut across the grass toward the cottage. "I was going to call to tell you that Mat was not be available until after Feb. 1."

For three years the Army sought to close the hospital and each time Norrell and Sens. McClellan and Fulbright, Arkansas Democrats, ward off the blow. Last year Congress administered a verbal spanking to the Army when a House Appropriations Committee report charged that the Army had been thwarting the will of Congress in the matter. At that stage the Army gave up and increased the hospital staff.

Sen. Fulbright and Rep. Hays (D-Ark) are planning to reintroduce legislation, similar to bills they sponsored last year, calling for a federal program for construction of county agricultural buildings. They would have the government pay 30 per cent of the cost of the buildings—more in cases where counties could not pay their share—which would be headquarters for various federal, state and local farm activities.

Fulbright is planning a bill to earmark 10 per cent of national forest revenues for development and maintenance of recreational facilities of the forests.

Had such a plan been in effect in the 1956 fiscal year, he said, 11 million dollars would have been available for recreational development with only slightly more than two million dollars actually available.

"We are missing a tremendous opportunity for increasing our national recreational resources by allowing our national forests to go undeveloped," Fulbright said.

"My bill would insure that a sizeable amount would automatically be available each year for building up the recreational assets of our national forests."

She leaned toward Cass tensely. "But if you have any idea that Alex Ward doesn't love you..."

Cass stood up and smoothed her skirt. "He definitely did not love me last night. Sue, when he left the house, resentment was the only feeling he had for me then."

"I don't believe it. He loves you too much. And in many ways you've been absolutely wonderful."

"I have not been wonderful," said Cass passionately. "I've been—I've been downright woefully in my meddling. Sue Knapp, I have! Look at all the damage I've done in less than a year here in the home."

"Yes," said Cass. "I saw him." "Hm-mm-mm. Got in last night. He'd read about Lenoire—and he came back. It was a nasty jolt for him, of course."

Cass stopped dead, to turn and look at Sue. Her face was puzzled.

She reflected her expression. "Didn't Alex tell you?"

"Tell me what?"

Sue gestured toward chairs which stood under the trees of the cottage lawn. "About Matt and Lenoire. He knew from the first. Your Alex is a very smart boy. 'You see, Lenoire came here because of Matt,' said Sue. She crossed her long legs, and ran her thumb nail along the edge of the white coat which she wore. "She was a nurse—a remember that morning with Aunt Cordy when we thought she might have been? Well, she was. In the same hospital where Matt was in service. They—he says they went around together. Then she became ill. And she decided to hit the hospital. He'd talked about it just the same time he was due home. He'd kept in touch with her, I think. But, anyway, she came here for treatment of a slight paralysis left over from her illness. Alex spotted her as a phony, he connected her with Matt—and he tried to warn me."

Cass gazed at Sue incredulously. "But the things she did the houseboat—and that car..."

"Remember her still, a calm manner? Well, she was still, all right—and deep. She wanted Matt. She wanted to be able to put me out, and take my place and have the town accept her. So first she must establish herself in the town's esteem."

"Hm-mm-mm. And on the day of the big storm—they planned to leave town separately, and meet in St. Louis. But poor Lenoire never made it."

Today Lenoire had been buried. And Matt—why, he hadn't even gone to her funeral! Cass struggled to get control of herself. "Last night," she gasped, "I did my level best to make Alex serve as pall bearer—for that woman."

Sue grinned a little. "He wouldn't want to," she agreed. "Where'd Alex go, Cass? He just called last night and said he had to leave on some business. But he didn't say what business, nor where he'd be, nor when he'd be back."

Cass stared straight ahead, her eyes blank. "He just walked out on me," she said wistfully.

"Oh, no. Not you, too!"

Cass glared at her, her lips were thin. "There's no too about it," she said tartly. "It was right for him to go."

"But not without you, Cass! Why, he needs you, and the help you could be."

"I haven't helped him much in the past months," said Cass grimly. "You knew that! And tried to tell me."

"Oh, Cass..."

"No, Sue. Besides, I'm the one who needs him! Alex knows that, too! Just about as surely as he knows that he cannot let me run his life."

Sue smiled wistfully. "In that case, you're a lucky girl—to have that kind of basis for your marriage."

"Just at this minute, Sue, I'm not sure of my luck—or my marriage."

"Oh, things will be all right. How's about coming in for lunch?"

"No, I must go back. You've heard about Marcy?"

"Heavens, what's happened to her?"

Quickly she told Sue of Jake's coming, and briefly mentioned his purpose. She told warmly of the immediate attention between him and Marcy, told how fine a man he was. She even told of her own farcical mistake about his identity. "I did my best to make sure he was a doctor. And she told, gently wistful, of the happy outcome of the swift romance. Jake and Marcy were driving to his home in Illinois, and would be married there."

"I'm glad," said Sue earnestly. "That bigamy deal—how could a man do such a thing to a lovely young girl like Marcy?"

"Because she was young and lovely."

"I suppose. And because men—some men—are selfish heels."

Cass gathered up her purse. "What about you and Matt now? On the night of the storm—remember?—you said you didn't love him any more."

"I don't know. And I didn't. Maybe I don't, and won't. But I hope that won't make too much difference when it comes to keeping the family together. That project is going to give us a basis on which we can—we hope—rebuild our marriage."

She leaned toward Cass tensely. "But if you have any idea that Alex Ward doesn't love you..."

Cass stood up and smoothed her skirt. "He definitely did not love me last night. Sue, when he left the house, resentment was the only feeling he had for me then."

"I don't believe it. He loves you too much. And in many ways you've been absolutely wonderful."

"I have not been wonderful," said Cass passionately. "I've been—I've been downright woefully in my meddling. Sue Knapp, I have! Look at all the damage I've done in less than a year here in the home."

Fagan Takes Police Bill Before Senate

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A bill to prevent any state, city or county employee from belonging to a labor union was to be introduced in the Arkansas Senate today.

The sponsor, Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock, said the bill "was a direct result of the situation" at the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases.

A committee from the Legislature Council cited disagreements between supervisory employees and the head of a labor union at the hospital as contributing to difficulties at the hospital.

Fagan emphasized that the bill would not prohibit a public employee from being a member of the union as long as that union did not represent public employees as a group.

Sen. Robert H. Williams of Russellville said he was preparing a bill to incorporate into the state highway system all roads inside state-supported colleges.

Williams said he was waiting until he received estimates of the mileage involved at each college before introducing the bill.

An estimate of the University of Arkansas mileage, including roads inside the various university experiment stations, totaled about 16 miles. Williams said the total for all other state-supported colleges probably would not equal the total for the university.

Judges, Cities Can't Agree on Loot Split

LITTLE ROCK (AP) Plans of the Arkansas Municipal League and the Arkansas County Judges Association to make a joint try for more state revenue for construction and maintenance of city and county streets and roads apparently have ended.

Glen C. Zimmerman, AML executive director, said today "We have never reached agreement" with the county judges, who had proposed legislation for a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax with the proceeds divided equally between municipalities and counties.

Zimmerman said the AML, which wanted more than the suggested 50 per cent split in additional revenue, would propose its own bill, and that it possibly would be introduced tomorrow.

Gov. Orval Faubus said a his news conference this morning that he has "enough to do minding my own business" without trying to "bring the counties and cities together" on the question of turn-back funds.

He added, however, that "I think the need of the cities is possibly greater than that of the counties, said I was hopeful they could get together on a program that would be helpful."

The measure would give cities and towns 25 per cent of any increase in motor vehicle revenues, and towns 25 per cent of any increase in motor vehicle revenues.

Cove, to Alex, and almost to Marcy. And even to poor Aunt Cordy. I tried to undermine their individualities. I burrowed into their personalities. I used them—I did everything I possibly could to make myself essential to them, and needed by them. To build myself up, to give myself power.

"They don't need me now, half as much as I need them. Especially Alex—though now, by a miracle of God—maybe the storm came to my rescue, too. Just as it did to you and Matt. And to Marcy. Maybe it saved me, too. But in any case, I thank God that something brought me to the point where I could realize that I won't want others to need me that way, to lean upon me, and build their lives entirely around me."

Sue came to her, and put her arm about Cass's slender shoulders. "You're going to live in that hope, aren't you?"

"Of course. I haven't any choice. I must hope that when he's back on his own feet, and is his own man, firmly established in his work as a man, that he'll return to me..."

"Oh, he will, Cass. He'll come back—and soon."

Cass smiled faintly. "I hope it's soon," she confessed. "But whenever it is, Sue, I'll be waiting for him. Ready to honor him, and admire him, to love him. But above all, to let him be himself, to grow to make his own decisions. That's what he's given me—and I mean to give it to him now. I'll let me have another chance!"

Sue stooped to kiss her. "Oh, Cass," she cried earnestly. "You are a lucky girl! To have even the hope of sharing that kind of love. A love that will be all the stronger for what you've both been through."

"For what we've been through?" Cass repeated softly. Then she turned to her friend. "But, Sue," she cried, almost joyously. "You have that hope too! You and Matt can have that sort of love!"

"Some day," said Sue, smiling gently. "Some day we'll have it. Cass, yes, I think we shall."

Parks Group Renominates Officers

By ADREN COOPER

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Legislation to enable the state Publicity and Parks Commission to market bonds for parks improvements will receive the backing of the administration, Gov. Orval Faubus said today.

The bill, which will be introduced in the Arkansas Senate by Sen. Tom Allen of Brinkley, would permit the commission to use any revenue available to retire the bonds.

Under acts passed in 1953 and 1955, any park on which bonds were issued for improvements would have to provide the revenue to retire those bonds.

If the legislation is enacted, the Publicity and Parks Commission plans improvements in the near future at Lake Catherine near Hot Springs, Petit Jean near Morrilton, Devils Den near Fayetteville, and Buffalo River Park in Yell County.

Judge John C. Sheffield of Helena of the Publicity and Parks Commission said there was no limitation on the amount of bonds that could be issued since they would be retired through park revenue. He estimated the entire park system needed three million dollars worth of improvements to accommodate visitors during the next 10 years.

Faubus said only one out of six applications for accommodations at a Buffalo River Park could be filled.

Commenting on the bill to increase driver's license fees from $1 to $2, Faubus said he expected no opposition to it in the Senate. The bill which passed the House by a one-sided vote yesterday, would pay for the addition of 92 state troopers and establish a bureau to give driver's license tests.

Faubus said that if the bill becomes law the driver's license test bureau would be set up late this year. Added that State Police could begin hiring additional troopers in July. There will be no additional revenue from the driver's license fee increase until January 1958, but this falls within the fiscal year which begins next July 1.

Democrats Plan February Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) Democratic leaders will gather in San Francisco next month for a national conference on social and economic issues. "The conference will stress the 'Western viewpoint.'"

The Democratic National Committee said today more than 1,000 Democrats are expected to attend the conference Feb. 15-16. It will be held in conjunction with a meeting of the national and the advisory committees.

This will be the first Democratic National Committee meeting ever held west of the Mississippi.

he said, above $25,575,000 guaranteed annually by the bill, the declared Zimmerman, "is more than the Highway Department received last year" in state revenue.

In addition the department's revenues from the department's revenues from the gasoline tax refund to cities, he said. This fund is accumulated to refund the state gasoline tax to farmers who apply for it. The balance, under the present system, goes to the Highway Department.

Zimmerman said the balance amounted to $1,240,000 last year.
